

Introducing ...

David Rowan

Acoustic and Electric Guitar, Music Theory

David Rowan has been an accomplished guitar player since the age of fourteen, studying with John Skehan (of Railroad Earth fame). In high school his band took home a battle of the bands award after only a handful of prior gigs. It was during this time that David honed his skills in classic rock and blues guitar at the National Guitar Workshop in Massachusetts. Spurred on by accolades in high school, David continued to study music at the County College of Morris in the field of music recording where he also learned classical guitar from a Grammy Award winning teacher.

Following his stint at Morris, David continued jazz guitar through Berklee School of Music's online program, during which he also studied with a Berklee alumni aimed at entering their campus program that fall. Most recently, David has had the opportunity to study with some of the best worship leaders on the East Coast at Morningstar's School of Worship Arts. David spent his second year there teaching alongside his mentors. Throughout the years David has been found in bands ranging from jazz/funk/folk/classic rock/jam rock. Now David continues teaching guitar and music theory through Grace Center for the Arts.

David's Fall 2010 Schedule:

Beginning Group Guitar—Tuesdays at 7:00 pm

Beginning Group Guitar—Saturdays at 1:00 pm

Private lessons: Please contact for availability
dave@gracearts.org

Grace Center for the Arts
1141 Heatherstone Drive
Fredericksburg, VA 22407
540-785-2293
www.gracearts.org

